

Exploratory Data Analysis

Jack Phelan

May 202025

1 Introduction

This is a test document for exploratory data analysis. We will be using the `pandas` library in Python to perform our analysis. We will be working with a dataset that contains information about various products, including their prices, ratings, and categories. The goal of this analysis is to gain insights into the data and identify any trends or patterns that may exist.